Miss Ridgeley, the teacher of Art at the Normal school, on next Monday and Tuesday will give an exhibition of the work of her pupils this term.
Her studio is the first room on the left of this drawing and modeling from life without cost.

the wonderful skill and genius of the organist.
The "Storm," Dr. Baldwin's own so well on the occasion of his other visits to the city, was repeated by spe-

Baldwin will leave soon for London, England, where he will play at Albert Hall.

DEATH INSTEAD OF WEDDING.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—Instead of the joyful words of the marriage service, the sad strains of the funeral ritual were read yesterday afternoon for Miss Verona Oliver of Chester, who, at the very hour of her burial, was to have become the bride of Charles Baker of Wilmington. The service was recited by the minister who was to have officiated at the wedding.

The body was clothed in the wedding gown, the bridal veil draped about the head. The coffin reposed in a room filled with flowers, arranged for the nuptial ceremony. The pallbearers were the six young girls who had been chosen to serve as bridesmaids.
